Foreword

Under the auspices of the Republican State Executive Committee of North Carolina, this booklet has been printed and sent forth. The idea of its creation originated in the mind of one man—Brownlow Jackson, Secretary of the State Executive Committee—who told me that it came to him in a dream. When he mentioned the matter to me, I thought it was surely a dream and a very foolish one, at that. I was mistaken. Jackson stuck to his dream, and when the idea was presented to the Republicans of the State, it met with spontaneous and almost unanimous approval.

It is not claimed that the work is perfect. Time in which to complete it has been short. It has been difficult to get the photographs of some; and impossible to get others that should be reproduced here. I fear that some of the heroes of the past and, perhaps, of the present are missing. But enough has been done, I believe, to lay the foundation for a greater and more perfect work.

My hope has been, and is, that Republicans of North Carolina will read and ponder this booklet, imperfect though it is, and feel and know that their party has produced statesmen as learned and great, and heroes as brave and self-sacrificing as any other party has produced. By so doing, they will intensify a just pride in their leadership of the past and rededicate themselves to the principles of the Republican party, as it strives to serve and save America.

The Republican party of North Carolina has had in its leadership many great orators, lawyers, judges, doctors, and statesmen, and a vast army of loyal American citizens who have desired only to live their lives in the American way. Many of them have crossed the Great Divide and now reside in that land beyond the Silent River. They live there, as they desired to live here, in a government under law, perfected by the Hand and Will of God.

Many of our people may feel that our leaders in the past fought in a Lost Cause. There is no Lost Right Cause. Out of the ashes of defeat, there will yet arise a more beautiful State, a more glorious Republic, a more perfect Union, a grander civilization, through a loyalty to tried and proved principles of government and devotion to the cause of Liberty under law, such as most of our leaders had. Their voices are calling—calling!

JAKE F. NEWELL,

Chairman Republican State Executive Committee.

Charlotte, N. C.
March 25th, 1940.

"Many free countries have lost their liberty, and ours may lose hers; but if she shall, be it my proudest plume, not that I was last to desert, but that I never deserted, her."

"If ever I feel the soul within me elevate and expand to those dimensions not wholly unworthy of its Almighty Architect, it is when I contemplate the cause of my country, deserted by all the world beside, and I standing up boldly, alone, and hurling defiance at her victorious oppressors."

"Here, without contemplating consequences, before Heaven, and in the face of the world, I SWEAR ETERNAL FIDELITY TO THE JUST CAUSE, as I deem it, of the land of my life, my liberty, and my love."

Abraham Lincoln, 1840.

JAKE F. NEWELL

State Chairman of Republican State Committee

Why I Am A Republican

The question is frequently asked me, "Why are you a Republican?" Of course, the inquiry is made by friends who are not Republicans. And, regardless of whatever friendliness may prompt the question, the fact is that it suggests that being a Republican in the South makes the road rougher and the way to political success and honor more difficult, if not impossible.

For the very reason that the question has been so often asked me and for the further reason that the same question has been asked thousands of other Republicans in this State, I shall attempt, in the brief space allotted me in this permanent record, to answer the inquiry. In approaching my subject, I must consider our Nation, our State, our Southland, our People, and our Future. I must also consider the major political parties as now constituted. It would be as foolish in any citizen to pledge his allegiance to any political party for the remainder of his life, regardless of what that party might do or become, as it would be to vote a particular party ticket regularly, through prejudice, sectional bias, or social advantage, regardless of the fitness of its candidates or the policies it proclaims. The choice of political affiliation should be made only after mature deliberation; and should then be based on the general welfare of all of the people and the most probable opportunity for promoting that welfare. Indeed, the true American conception of a political party is that it is an instrumentality for the purpose of achieving, promoting and preserving the liberty of every individual citizen. And in the word Liberty is included every other human right. In giving the answer to the question, "Why are you a Republican?" it is also necessary to consider the yesterday, the today, and the probable tomorrow in our National history—our background, our present trends, and our ultimate destiny.

It has been said that we inherit our politics and our religious denominations. The allegation is largely true. The fact that it is true argues both well and ill for the parents in our land. In one sense it proves that they try to teach their children and instill in their minds the principles of patriotism and morality; and in another sense it proves that we venture upon the activities of life bound by religious and political prejudices moulded for us from infancy. But history's pages are crowded with instances in which peoples have changed both their religious and their political affiliations. This does not mean that it is necessary to change both at the same time, nor that both are inseparably linked. Indeed, the two great interests of all intelligent free people—religion and politics—are rarely so intertwined. But it does mean that all people have found it necessary to use their intelligence and to make a choice, even if making that choice involves a complete break with their past. Human progress is naturally a revolutionary process. People change their religious affiliation when they become convinced that their particular organization, through its leadership, has become corrupt or apostate; and they change their political affiliation when they become convinced that a better form of government and way of life can be thereby achieved. The Declaration of Independence, promulgated at Philadelphia, on July 4, 1776, states the latter principle emphatically as the right of a people; and the former principle is guaranteed as a human right by the Constitution of the United States in its protection of the right to worship according to the individual conscience. And both principles were incorporated in the Constitution by making provision for frequent elections. Every election of Legislative and Executive officers in this Republic is a peaceable revolution, if the law is observed. Hence, a safe solution of the problems of the people in a free government depends upon the ability of a majority of the citizens to make an intelligent decision on issues and men, and then to have the courage to execute that choice by the ballot, which is the free-man's weapon to be used in his defense.

The most courageous experiment in founding a nation and a government ever undertaken by men on this earth was conceived and executed by the great group of patriotic statesmen who wrote the Constitution of the United States, together with the first ten amendments thereto, known as the Bill of Rights. Prior to that time it was not thought possible to have a government other than one ruled by a king, potentate, or tyrant with absolute, or near absolute, authority, even to the extent of life and death over his subjects. In short, the theory had been that the individual was a mere chattel of the State and that the ruler was the State. The only right the individual had was to produce the revenue to run the State in time of peace and fight the battles of the king in time of war. But the founders of our government reversed the age-old order and made the citizen the sovereign and the ruler the servant of all of the people. It was to be a government of all of the people by the self-government of all of the citizens. The method chosen for the participation and expression of the citizens was the selection of their servants or representatives by a majority in elections frequently and freely held. Hence, they called the government thus erected, a Republic—because it was to be the citizens' affair or business. A cardinal principle of the founders was that "the best government was the least government" which was the expression of a jealous regard for the liberty of the individual. To be a worthwhile citizen of this self-governing Republic requires intelligence, moral character, and a very high degree of self-discipline—values and attainments not necessary nor permitted in the government of a dictator or tyrant. Under our government as founded, every citizen, every day and night, committed his life and the lives of his loved ones, and all he possessed to the care and keeping of God and his fellow citizens.

But when our government was founded under the Constitution there were along the Atlantic seaboard certain political subdivisions which had been known as colonies, but then evolved into States. They had fought together successfully in a war to secure their independence from Great Britain. But they were still not united. Besides, there was the vast domain stretching to the Pacific Ocean, which, it could be seen, would probably be included within the boundaries of the Republic. Wisdom suggested the folly of allowing America to be dotted with little states, or principalities, subject to petty jealousies and foreign intrigues, and, therefore, destructive of the peace dearly won in the Revolution. Hence, the purpose, and only purpose, of founding this Republic on the Constitution of the United States was expressed in its preamble, which is in these words:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America."

The powers of the Government of the United States were, and are, only such powers as have been granted to it by consent of the several States. Thus, the States retained unto themselves the right and power to govern in all of their internal affairs, through their own legislatures and courts. This was a wise provision, not only on account of the diverse interests of the several States, and the danger of centralized power, but also for the reason that it brought the duty and privilege of self-government to the hearthstone of every citizen. If freedom is to be preserved, the government must not be too far removed from the citizen and his community.

The founders of our government—and, for some years after its establishment, all of the great leaders and statesmen—never envisioned the creation and organization of political parties as we now know them. Their hope was that the people would freely, fearlessly, and honestly discuss all issues and matters pertaining to their welfare and then vote according to their convictions, regardless of a party name. They did not oppose political parties, but deeply feared the spirit of party, because they believed that spirit would lead to ruthless factions, sectional animosities, ill-founded jealousies, false alarms, riot and insurrection, and open the door to foreign influence, and finally stifle liberty. How wonderfully wise they were, we all now have eyes to see. The great burden on the hearts of the founders was to prevent the dissolution of the Union and preserve it intact for the preservation of liberty at home and as a beacon on the shores of time to light the way of the nations.

Eventually, the ominous rumblings of Disunion were heard in the land. The rock on which the Republic was about to founder was African slavery. A small, but powerful minority in the South owned slaves. An organization known as Abolitionists had arisen in the North and threatened to become a formidable political party. It was dedicated to the abolition of slavery. The dominant element in the South was determined not only to retain slavery, but to extend the institution into new territory. Section became embittered against section; hatred was brewed; and national reason was dethroned. The Democratic party was in the ascendant and practically without opposition. The Whig party, which had done so much to build and sustain the Republic, was dying because it had reached the fatal point where it could not make a decision. The wise and patriotic men in both the North and the South looked with dread upon Dis-union. The work of Washington and Jefferson and their compatriots was about to be destroyed. And in this hour of crisis and gloom the Republican party was born, not to abolish slavery, not to coerce the South, but to save the Union and to prevent the extension of the institution of slavery into new territory. The Abolitionists were too fanatical to see that slavery must speedily die of its own inherent disease; and the dominant faction of the South was too blind to see that property in the lives and bodies of human beings—though black men, women and children—was frowned upon by the Creator and outlawed by the conscience of the world.

Then there strode across the national stage a tall, lean, awkward, majestic figure, whose face seemed to bear the furrows of deep sorrow; whose blue eyes seemed to radiate a love for the people of the whole nation, North and South; whose clear, eloquent voice wooed and won all who heard him speak as he tried to call the contending factions back to the household of freedom and the Temple of the Union; and whose caution and gentle bearing seemed to proclaim the fact that he foresaw the impending catastrophe and would prevent it if he could. That man was Abraham Lincoln, real founder of the Republican Party, and martyred President of the United States.

It is not necessary here to recount the victories and defeats of the terrible war that followed. It can be said, however, that the reason the war lasted for four years, with its enormous cost in blood and treasure, was that American was fighting against American. There were heroes on both sides. And it can be further said that if the South had won, the Union would have been destroyed.

But the war was brought to a successful close and the Union of the States saved. During the hard four years of titanic struggle of brother against brother, Lincoln saved the nation from serious foreign entanglements and developed a foreign policy which has ever since been a chart for our wisest statesmen; preserved the credit of the United States; and laid plans for a reunited country to prosper and go forth to a great and ordained destiny. And then the great Lincoln fell before an assassin's bullet. The country was stunned and the world shocked. The greatest earthly friend of mankind had been slain.

Immediately, the fires of sectional hate were rekindled. Again, the hot-heads on both sides undertook to drive the people to despair and to the destruction of the Republic, while the saner heads on both sides were bowed in speechless grief. The unhappy result was that we had Congressional Reconstruction instead of Presidential, or Lincolnian Reconstruction, led on the one side by such radicals as Thaddeus Stephens and answered on the other by the hooded Knights of the Invisible Empire. In North Carolina, at least, neither the victory of Northern arms nor the abolition of slavery created lasting animosities, but some of the acts of the Congressional Reconstructionists rankled in the hearts of our people. The tragedy was that many politicians of the South saw their opportunity and charged the party of Lincoln with their calamities, and ever since have made their party allegiance a parlor asset instead of a means of promoting the real interests of the South and the preservation of the Republic as a representative constitutional democracy.

I have penned the foregoing brief summary of our national political history up to the day of Lincoln, first, to show the trials, vicissitudes, and victories in establishing this Republic as a government dedicated to freedom, and, second, to show the stupendous undertaking of Lincoln and the Republican party in preserving it, with a new baptism under God, as an indissoluble union—a government by all of the people for all of the people. The Republican party was conceived and born in the spirit of Liberty and received the enduring impress of the countenance and purpose of Lincoln. Whatever progress this nation has made since 1860 has been made under the guidance and policies of the Republican party—for the reason that it has been a party of all the people. The Republican party has doubtless made mistakes. It is a human institution. But, being a party based and built upon definite principles, it can correct its mistakes and proceed on its way under its chart and compass which have never failed to guide the Ship of State into the haven of Liberty and Opportunity.

Wherefore, I give my answer and say that I am a Republican

(1) Because the Republican party is a party of freedom for all of the people.

(2) That, being a party of freedom for all of the people, there is not, to my knowledge, a single election precinct in any State of the Union in which the Republican party is dominant, where any qualified voter of any other party can not cast a free and unquestioned ballot and have it counted as cast.

(3) Because the Republican party keeps the door of equal opportunity open to all men and women.

(4) Because the Republican party stands for the highest possible standard of living for all men and women who work, and does not believe that we should place our working people on a level with the pauper and peon labor of foreign lands.

(5) Because the Republican party believes in a sound money system as an essential to all material progress.

(6) Because the Republican party believes that permanent progress and prosperity of our people can be maintained only on the basis of individual initiative in all lines of business without unnecessary and vexatious interference by government and governmental officers and spies.

(7) Because the Republican party believes in proper regulation, under law, of all business and industry, as authorized by the Constitution of the United States; but does not believe in governmental control or confiscation of any citizen's business.

(8) Because the Republican party does not believe that the government should enter into business in competition with any of its citizens.

(9) Because the Republican party believes that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and that the employer is worthy of the worth of the laborer's hire.

(10) Because the Republican party is the only safe and determined bulwark against the threat of Communism, Fascism and Nazism in this country, and is determined that these curses of alien dictatorships shall not gain a foothold in the United States.

(11) Because the Republican party believes that freedom for the individual is a spiritual right and fact and can be preserved only by an aroused public conscience in a passion for justice by all men to all men.

(12) Because the Republican party is determined to protect the rights and sovereignty of the States against the usurpation and centralizing tendencies of the Federal Government, and to preserve them as pillars of freedom.

(13) Because the Republican party is determined to abide by the Constitution of the United States and defend the Courts, and especially the Supreme Court, against all usurpations, packings, and weakenings.

(14) Because the Republican party is not a party of expediency for winning elections, and is, therefore, practically free from alien and crack-pot isms.

(15) Because, as a Southerner, I believe that it is necessary for our people of the South and the Republicans of the North—who together compose the true American stock—to get together to preserve this Republic, just as together they founded it.

(16) Because the Republican party has the courage to take defeat rather than forsake its principles, or play the hypocrite by embracing alien or fantastic notions to win.

(17) Because the Republican party believes that this nation should not entangle itself with the schemes, intrigues and ambitions of foreign nations, but should protect the United States in all of its sovereignty and steadfastly prevent any foreign nation from setting up its system or gaining territorial foothold anywhere on the Western Hemisphere.

15-Point Program Plan Organization Republican Party North Carolina

First: Each county Chairman to appoint a committee of at least three Republicans as a special committee in each township, preferably three men and three women.

Second: This committee make a house-to-house canvass of their respective township in order to ascertain who are Republicans.

Third: Republicans who have not registered and voted in the last election.

Fourth: Republicans who will become of age in time to vote in the next election.

Fifth: Republicans who have moved out of the township and where they have gone.

Sixth: Republicans who have moved in the township.

Seventh: Ascertain names of Democrats, and their addresses, who might vote the Republican ticket in the next election.

Eighth: A complete alphabetical record made of all the Republicans in order that the workers can familiarize themselves with the Republicans for the next election.

Ninth: Advise Republicans not to vote in Democratic Primaries. This habit disrupts the Republican Party and is not fair to the Democratic Party.

Tenth: Advise all Republicans if they register in Primary to register on Republican Registration Books.

Eleventh: In registering for general election they will register on General Registration Books.

Twelfth: County Chairman to recommend the appointment of a man who is fully capable and will see that the election laws are fully respected, as a member of County Board of Elections.

Thirteenth: County Chairman will recommend Republican judges who are capable and will see that the election is fully carried out according to law.

Fourteenth: County Committee and Special Township Committee to meet with County Chairman once a month at least.

CAROLINA MOVES FORWARD

Just as abundant electric power at reasonable rates has been the most largely determining factor in the industrial development of the Carolinas, with the resulting large pay rolls and purchasing power and increased taxable values, just so this same power, ample for all purposes, and at even lower rates, is serving existing industries and will continue to be an outstanding factor in further industrial expansion.

And with further industrial expansion will come increased employment, increased taxable values, and increased purchasing power with resulting greater prosperity for workers, merchants, farmers and all other classes of our people.

In store, in office, on the farm and in home, as well as in industry, electricity plays a predominant part. In stores proper lighting means better business and better service to customers. In offices better lighting means better work and less fatigue. In homes proper lighting and electric service mean better living—less fatigue and drudgery and more of brightness and freshness. On the farm in many specialized lines electric service means both savings and profits as well as pleasanter and easier living.

ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP—

USE IT ADEQUATELY TO YOUR OWN ADVANTAGE

CHARLOTTE "The Queen City of the South" . . . In the Center of the Carolinas

Full-Fashioned Hosiery Industry . . . Logical Distributing Point and Branch Location for concerns that sell to THE SOUTHERN TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

Consider these facts:

CHARLOTTE is the center of the Carolinas where are located nearly two-thirds of all the spindles, two-thirds of all the looms and almost half of all the knitting machines in the South.

NORTH CAROLINA is now the first State in knit goods manufacture in the South with Tennessee second.

CHARLOTTE is headquarters for the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, Southern Textile Association, North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and the Southern Hosiery Manufacturers' Association.

In CHARLOTTE are located the Southern Shops of Whitin Machine Works, Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, Saco-Lowell Shops, and Parks-Cramer Co.; and the Southern Laboratories of nationally known chemical and dyestuffs manufacturers.

CHARLOTTE has more full-fashion knitting machines than any other city in the South.

CHARLOTTE has modern office buildings, and warehouse facilities.

CHARLOTTE is a railway and motor express center.

CHARLOTTE is connected with all the important textile points in the Carolinas, Tennessee, Virginia, and Georgia by hard surfaced highways.

CHARLOTTE is only an overnight train trip from New York.

CHARLOTTE is on the Eastern Air Lines New York to Atlanta mail and passenger line.

CHARLOTTE is but an overnight ride by train to a population of over 15,000,000 people.

CHARLOTTE has two National Banks, two large Trust Companies, three Industrial Banks and the Carolina Branch of the Federal Reserve System.

Any information desired we invite you to call the convention and Tourist Bureau of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, Al Bechtold, Secretary.
